"London Express" Publishes Alleged Terms of Combine.

REGISTRY TO BE IN AMERICA

Earnings of the Trust Will Be Pooled, and Prorated According to the Capital of Separate Companies as Represented by Their Steamers.

LIVERPOOL, April 29 .- The "Express" today publishes what it claims are the authoritative details of the new Trans-Atlantic shipping combination. These details are:

There will be no sale of British ships to J. P. Morgan, as a majority of the ships are British, and the combination cannot be managed adversely to British inter-

There will be a combination of the companies on the basis of a nominal capital. The combination will be registered in America. The capital of the combine will be the Detectives Take Abraham individual value of each boat in the various fleets of the companies entering the combination.

The cargo and passenger boats will be valued separately.

There will be a working agreement so far as rates and freights are concerned. The companies combining will declare the gross freights carried by each boat, and these will go into a pool to be divided pro rata with the capital.

The separate management of each concern will continue. The company which can manage its floor most economically will receive a larger proportion of the net profits. With regard to the companies outside the combination provision will be made the combination provision will be made whereby they can join at any time, on similar terms to those arranged for the companies now in the combine. All that will be necessary in such, a case will be an increase of the nominal capital.

Sir J. C. Colomb will on Thursday put a question in the House of Commons to Mr. Gerald Balfour, president of the board of trade, asking whether the admiralty before adopting in 1887 the policy of subsidizing merchant vessels with a view to retaining them for war purposes, consulted the board of trade as to the probable effects of depriving the carrying trade, in the event of war, of those vessels best able to escape capture by an enemy.

Opposition Counseled.

"Pall Mall Gazette" today says that the feeling of alarm in the country by the announcement of the shipping combination is giving way in London to an opinion that it is not too late to organize hostilities by which the completion of the deal may be prevented.

It is not to be inferred that any attempt is being made to form a rival trust, but the companies which have kept aloof from the movement are prepared to memorialize the government, urging it to veto the proposed scheme, if possible, or to pass a special act by which British ports shall not remain open to vessels run by the trust

Considered a Disaster.

The "Pall Mall Gazette" adds that there is little doubt that action on these lines would have the approval of the people of the country, who feel that the methods of commercial warfare now attempted are unfair. Much depends upon the action of the Cunard Company. Should the latter elect to join the trust, the best authorities believe that sufficient pressure can be brought to bear to frustrate the whole deal, and to save British shipping from what is nothing less than a creat disaster. than a great disaster.

Learned Speaker Rebukes "Vain and Bedizened Wearers" of Blood-Bought Pearls, and Says Some Modern Theories "Are of the Devil."

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 29 .- Bishop Potter, discussing "The Citizen and the ner" in his lecture at Yale last night said: "We cannot leave the problem of the ensumer to the realm of academic reaning, as in the case of the capitalist and the workingman," he said. "A chizen cannot be a citizen without being a consumer. The mill owner must find some place for the product of his mill and the workingman something to depend upon for the utilizing of the product of his hands. Compare the modern man in a factory with the man of years ago at the loom. The man at the loom often worked at his home and owned his tools. The workingman of today is the slave of the machine. He followed it all day long in its inexorable routine, and if he gets in its way it may kill him.

"In the railways and waterways we find men who have never seen their employers. And as you try to touch one of these lives with your own you have a sort of some place for the product of his mill

And as you try to touch one of these lives with your own you have a sort of start, for you cannot but regard him as a mere cog in the great wheel of commerce; and so they say that some lives must be sacrificed in the coal hole that the great column of commerce must move on. You may call the theories by what name you will, they are of the devil.

"It is a question whether we ought to encourage the production of goods, with indifference to the infamous methods of their production. Here is a pearl which a woman wears about her neck, with others, and which was obtained at priceless cost from some deep-sea sounding. It is put to no use whatever but personal adornment. To find it, or something like it, the diver took his life in his mands. adornment. To find it, or something like it, the diver took his life in his hands, and often lost it.
